With more than 8,500 members, the National Association of Pediatric Nurse Practitioners (NAPNAP) has been the professional organization for pediatric-focused advanced practice registered nurses (APRNs), including pediatric nurse practitioners (PNPs), who care for children since its founding in 1973. Our mission is to empower pediatric-focused APRNs) and their interprofessional partners to enhance child and family health through leadership, advocacy, professional practice, education and research.

Who We Are

Pediatric-focused APRNs are advanced practice healthcare providers dedicated to improving children’s health in primary care, as well as specialty and acute care settings. We have been providing quality health care to children and families for more than 40 years in an extensive range of practice settings, such as pediatric offices, specialty clinics, school-based health care settings and hospitals, reaching millions of patients across the country each year. We spend significant one-on-one time with patients, birth through 21 years old, and families. Fifty-five percent of our members report spending 11-20 minutes with patients and 23 percent report spending more than 20 minutes.
What We Do

- Manage acute, chronic and critical pediatric diseases, including asthma, diabetes and cancer
- Provide pediatric health care maintenance, including well child exams
- Diagnose and treat common childhood illnesses such as allergies, otitis and acne
- Screen and manage mental health illnesses in children and adolescents
- Perform in-depth physical assessments, including vision, hearing and dental
- Perform therapeutic procedures in a variety of settings
- Prescribe medication, therapies and medical equipment
- Order and interpret results of laboratory and diagnostic tests
- Provide anticipatory guidance regarding common child health concerns such as nutrition, obesity and weight management
- Provide behavioral counseling in areas such as school failure, ADHD and risk taking behaviors
- Coordinate and lead pediatric healthcare homes
- Develop and evaluate therapeutic management plans
- Perform developmental screenings
- Perform school physicals and provide childhood immunizations
- Provide anticipatory guidance on in-home safety, unintentional injuries, sports injuries, motor vehicle and bike safety
Our more than 8,500 members, comprising of 49 chapters across the United States and 17 special interest groups, represent many facets of pediatric healthcare delivery, including primary and acute care pediatric nurse practitioners, family nurse practitioners, school nurse practitioners, neonatal nurse practitioners, clinical nurse specialists, pediatric nurse consultants, pediatric nurses and pediatric nurse practitioner students.

The Journal of Pediatric Health Care (JPHC) is the leading nurse practitioner journal for the care of infants, children, adolescents and young adults. JPHC is currently ranked 22nd out of 116 ranked nursing journals, 55th out of 120 medical pediatric journals and 39th out of 74 health policy and services journals. As the official journal of NAPNAP, JPHC publishes original, peer-reviewed articles on clinical topics, health policies and critical issues relevant to the expanded role of pediatric nurses and nurse practitioners in primary care. As the number of PNPs and other pediatric-focused APRNs grows, so does the scope and reach of our journal.

Contact: Roxana Muniz at r.muniz@elsevier.com or 646-509-3420 for JPHC advertising.
